AIG Technology Retains CarterTodd & Associates as PR Agency of Record

Columbia, SC - October 11, 2006 - CarterTodd & Associates has been retained to provide public relations and marketing services for Columbia-based AIG Technology. AIG Technology is a privately held software company specializing in document management. AIG Technology is one of the leading providers of document management, imaging, electronic workflow, and biometric-based time and attendance technology solutions.

“CarterTodd & Associates has significant experience in working with technology companies both locally and nationally-based,” said Lew Love, Marketing Director for AIG Technology. “This factor and their strong relationships with national trade and business journalists had a heavy influence on our company’s decision to retain CarterTodd.”

“With clients based throughout the country, AIG Technology is a very successful company,” said Lorri-Ann Carter, president & CEO of CarterTodd & Associates. “Our initial PR and marketing efforts will focus on further increasing the company’s visibility by placing new product releases and client success stories via an ongoing news media campaign in national IT & trade magazines.”
